REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Circular No. 3505-12, dated 9—19th September 1910.

In order to discover and prevent betimes encroachments on feeder channels of tanks by owners of cocoanut gardens, etc., by setting up dams for the irrigation of their gardens or by planting cocoanut and other trees thereon and obstructing the free flow of water to the tanks, the Revenue Commissioner issues the following instructions:—

Every year at about the time of the Dittam Jamabandi, the village officers should be required to carefully inspect all the feeder channels and hallas in their villages and add a certificate in the Pahani Register to that effect and obtain the attestation of some literate holders of wet lands under the tanks which are fed by such hallas, to such certificates. The Shekdars and Amildars in the course of testing the Bandh Pahanis should examine some feeders and see whether the village officers' inspection has been satisfactorily made and note the fact of such examination in the Pahani Register This work is specially important in the midland districts where cocoanut cultivation is prevalent to a large extent.

It is very desirable to have a list of feeder channels to be inspected according to this circular prepared and filed with the Pahani Register of each village every year.

A para should be added to the Jamabandi report every year, reviewing the results of the action taken under this circular.

A. RANGASWAMI IYENGAR,
Revenue Commissioner.
